

Marco A. Giamberardino, MPA
Executive Director, Government Affairs

Marco Giamberardino has served as NECA's Executive Director for Government Affairs since 2012. In addition to shaping NECA's legislative and regulatory strategy in advocating for the industry's key priority issues in Washington, DC, he also directs the association's Political Action Committee -- NECAPAC -- which is ranked as one of the top political action committees in the nation.

Marco has been active in government affairs for more than 25 years. Prior to joining NECA, he served as Senior Director, Government Affairs, for the Associated General Contractors of America and as the Director of Advocacy for the Building Owners and Managers Association. He is widely regarded as a policy expert in infrastructure investment, tax policy and federal procurement.

Marco earned his Bachelor's degree in History and Political Science from The State University of New York at Stony Brook and his Masters of Public Administration from The George Washington University. He lives with his family in Southbridge, VA.
